The residential property market certainly finished on a positive note in 2012 and the Fletchers Group has been kept extremely busy. Summer has been a particularly thriving period for our offices on the Bellarine and Mornington Peninsulas, whilst numerous new properties across the Eastern suburbs of Melbourne have also come onto the market.

Based on terrific buyer response, we are looking forward to a fantastic year ahead. Areas previously in great demand that experienced a period of dormancy should re-energise in 2013. Principally, good growth can only be assured in blue chip, established suburbs that are accessible to the city and with good infrastructure. For good capital growth in emerging areas, you need to consider the old fundamentals of infrastructure: industry and transport.

In property management news, a vacancy rate of 2.3% was recorded over the month of December last year. For the New Year to date, Fletchers properties have leased well, resulting in a vacancy rate of approximately 1% - a pleasing outcome.

The Reserve Bank of Australia's interest rate reduction in December last year provided mortgage holders with some welcome relief as the festive season began.

The RBA decided to leave the cash rate unchanged at 3 per cent at its first board meeting of 2013. In a statement accompanying the decision, RBA governor Glenn Stevens said the fiscal cliff in the US had been avoided, Chinese growth had improved and the financial pressures in Europe had eased: "sentiment in financial markets has continued to improve, with risk spreads narrowing and funding conditions for financial institutions becoming more favourable".

The REIV's recent release of the December median pricing information showed that the median house price in Melbourne increased by 7.8% to $555,000 from $515,000 in the September quarter. The increase confirms strengthening demand and improved consumer confidence, pointing to a material difference effected in housing affordability as a result of the Reserve Bank's interest rate cuts in 2012.
